California's Water: Rivers, Oceans, and Our Future

August 27, 2016 — 7:00pm

CSUMB@Salinas City Center/National Steinbeck Center

Please join us for a reception @ 6:00pm

Everyone is talking about water in California. This precious, finite resource is at the center of discussion, debate, and politics as California grapples with the challenges of drought and climate change. This event will feature state water experts talking about rivers, oceans, and the water under our very feet, discussing what we know and what we don't know, and what we must learn about how to manage a future in which water is going to become all the more precious.
